Memorial Park land

Site in Upland sought for YMCA building

By DINAH ROSE Staff Writer

Plans are in the works for a new YMCA to serve West End families. and the organization is asking the city of Upland for land on which to place the facility.

The project, estimated to cost between $1.2 and $1.5 million, will include a 25-meter indoor swimming pool, meeting and multi-purpose rooms, a kitchen, gymnasium and other features geared to both the vouth and senior citizens in the

Richard Anderson, an Upland attorney speaking for the group, said the request comes after a year and a half search throughout the community for a suitable location for the facility.

The YMCA committee settled on the Memorial Park site, and then requested an outside firm to make a similar search. The firm came to the same conclusion

The group is asking the city for permission to rent the land at a nominal fee, with the provision that they will be responsible for development

The only YMCA facility currently in the West End is located in Ontario. According to Anderson, 260,000 people used the facility last year, with 40 percent of the organization's revenue coming from Upland residents.

He projected that if constructed, an Upland YMCA would surpass attendance figures for the Ontario club in the first year. The Memorial Park location is particularly desirable due to a heavy concentration of senior citizens to the west and south, and youth to the north. The proposed site is currently occupied by a stand of pines, which City Manager Lee Travers estimated were planted in 1939 by the citizens of Upland. The area was used as the city nursery at one time.

Some of the trees in the park are scheduled to be cut down to accommodate circulation and parking, although Deputy City Engineer John Wisz is quick to point out as few trees as possible will be

Council member Ina Petokas expressed concern that by agreeing to let the YMCA use the land, the council would be "making a gift of taxpayers' land" that would potentially be used by a large number of Rancho Cucamonga residents.

The issue will now be sent to the Mayor's Advisory Committee, the Planning Commission and the Recreation Committee. They have the option to recommend approval of the project as submitted, reject it. or suggest an alternative site.

Some concern has been expressed regarding the effect the facility may have on current usage of Memorial Park, and whether the area could comfortably handle additional pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

Upland mayoral forum held

Candidates hit the campaign trail

By DINAH ROSE Staff Writer

Upland mayoral candidates hit the campaign trail early Thursday morning as they fielded questions from a group of Upland High School students in the West End's first public forum of the season.

More than 100 seniors in a government class challenged the candidates on issues ranging from campaign practices to condominium conversions. Roughly one-fourth of those students will be eligible to vote in the April 8 election.

William "Doyle" Alexander, a property investment counselor, and Councilman John McCarthy addressed the students, each showing slight signs of first-time nervousness. The third candidate, Councilman Bill Bottin, was unable to attend the forum due to previous business commitments.

In response to a student question, Alexander identified the city's most pressing need as a quality of "caring for every citizen within the city. He added that he wanted to guarantee that the mayor and city council as elected officials, and not city staff, ran the city.

McCarthy disagreed, saying that the function of elected officials was to set policy, and duties of day-today administration were assigned to the city manager and his staff.

McCarthy also expressed the desire to follow up on some of the programs he has been involved with during his 10 years as councilman.

He added that income from sales tax would have to be used to make up deficiencies for funds lost if the Jarvis initiative is passed.

On the issue of conversion of area apartments to condominiums, Alexander told the students Upland was joining a statewide trend against the development of multiple family homes. He cited the dwindling availability of apartments as responsible for spiraling rents. This will lead to the evil day that the city council has to consider rent control," he noted.

McCarthy said he was not opposed to the conversion of apartment units as long as each project falls within the guidelines in the planning and zoning section of the Upland Municipal Code, currently under review to be updated.

The code requires certain qualifications, such as a certain amount of open space, and minimum square footage of units. "If a project meets those standards, I have no objection." Returning to the issue of rent control. Alexander said he would oppose it unless "shown through facts that it had to be.'

McCarthy agreed that rent control is not the sole solution to the problem of skyrocketing rents, but said if it were imposed, it should be done at the state, rather than the local level.

"If we impose it, we have to enforce it," he told the students. "That would entail hiring more people, and I think the state is in a better position to do that.'

Each candidate gave an informal, five-minute introduction of himself, speaking without notes to the gathered students.

Alexander cited the four basic issues he considers the hub of his campaign: more concern for youth activities and sports programs, more concern for senior citizens, and building strong fire and police departments.

McCarthy, after giving a brief biography, spoke on the growth problems of the city, saying most expansion is being held in check by limited sewage capacity.

The forum was organized by Upland teacher Sue Goggin. Following the interview with candidates, the students were given a morninglong tour of city hall and shown the policies and procedures of each department.

Goggin said this was the seventh year the program had been in effect, and each year received an enthusiastic response from

Career clash Book tells how to cope if wife, husband work

By PATRICIA DIBSIE

Copley News Service The book jacket tells it like it is ... or could be for you in the '80s.

— You both have job offers — in different cities.

The joint checking account is overdrawn.

You have four evening meetings this week

- The children have the measles

- Your spouse is jealous of your

"Making It Together as a Two-Career Couple," was written by a two-career couple, Marjorie Hansen Shaevitz and Morton H. Shaevitz. The book (Houghton Mifflin Company, $8.95) is part observation, part projection and part experience.

Unfortunately, at first glance, it looks like another "how-to" book. Read on because it's not.

The couple says that more than 30 million American families deal with the problems of both partners working away from the home. Morton and Marjorie Shaevitz were confronted with the problems a situation like this is bound to bring from the beginning of their marriage in 1972. Both were involved in full-time careers at the University of California at San Diego. Shaevitz, who has a Ph.D. in clinical psychology, was dean and director of counseling and psychological services. Mrs. Shaevitz was director of counseling and registration services for the university's extension program. Up front the couple will admit that home discussions include such topics as who was responsible for taking out the garbage.

The Shaevitzes have two children of their own, Geoffrey, 5, and Mareika, 3. In addition, two children from Shaevitz's previous marriage spend a lot of time with the couple but make their residence in Los Angeles. Erica, 16, and Jonathon, 14, play a big part in the decisions made as a family.

We wrote this book to help people understand some of the stresses this type of lifestyle can bring," Shaevitz said. "But it's not a cookbook. We don't offer any recipes for instant solutions.

One of the major issues of the '80s is going to be how to deal with successful women in a marriage situation. Another issue will be maintaining quality relationships when you are in a situation when both partners have multiple pressures.

The book talks about "Two Careers: The New Game in Town (as chapter II is titled)," two-career parenting, dealing with dollars, selecting appropriate child care, coping with overload, and choosing the "right" employer.

"When it comes to social changes," America's business and industrial communities tend to respond very slowly, if at all," Shaevitz said.

"Companies, if they hope to keep their top people, are going to have to take a look at this coming phenomenon and make suitable adMorton and Marjorie Shaevitiz, who have written a book exploring ways to deal with the day-to-day stresses facing families in which both parents have careers, play with their daughter, Marejka, 3.

justments. They're going to have to look at their transfer policies and understand that in the past the move was predicated on a one-career (the husband's) household. Now there's more to making that decision - the wife's career.

And what happens if on finishing schooling the wife gets a better job offer than the husband? What if she is offered a good position, for example, in Boston, where getting a job will almost be impossible for the

From the book: "whichever of the two openings (should both be offered jobs) is adjudged the 'better' of the two opportunities will be the 'winner,' and that job will be accepted by the partner to whom it

Overlooking the hamlet of Khajuraho itself, most visitors limit their typical two-day stay here to view the restored remains of the unique houses of worship that the Chandella kings built as far back as 10 centuries ago. They are all around here, except inside

Folk Concert Set

The Aman Folk Ensemble, in concert at Mt. San Antonio College on Sunday, takes its name from the Hebrew and Arabic word that we spell Amen. It means a composite of joy, peace, and panache.

Several ingredients contribute to Aman's ethnic essences, or "feel of the old country." Perhaps the most commented-upon, besides the dancing, is Aman's costume collection - almost 2,000 pieces of exotica collected from around the world. From ornately brocaded gowns of Yugoslavia to sinuously flowing robes of the Middle East, Aman has acquired originals or exact replicas of the costumes worn in the locale that a dance represents.

Another ingredient is the music . . . Aman's blend of rare, "old country" instruments and authentic replicas, combined with the flexible voices of its singers. The 15 musicians have mastered more than 75 instruments, from the zumarra, first pictured in the tombs of Egypt's 18th Dynasty, to a pair of spoons common to a good old American hoedown.

The MSAC Lively Arts concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Gym 3. Tickets, at $4 for general admission and $3 for senior citizens and students, are available in the Community Services office extention 220.

R.C. firm's

Cucamonga-based Data-Design Laboratories achieved sales and earnings in the second quarter of fiscal 1980 which were the highest for any quarter in the company's 20-year history, Thomas C. Beiseker, president, announced.

For the three months ended Dec. 31, the second quarter, sales were $16,504;-000, up 45 percent from the prior year's $11,376,000. Net income advanced 40 percent to $787,000 from $564,000. Net earnings per share were 53 cents, up 33 percent from 40 cents per share in the year-ago period.

For the first six months of fiscal 1980, sales were $31, 926,000, up 47 percent from $21,755,000 last year. Net income was $1,385,000, up 57 percent from $883,000 one year ago, and net earnings per share rose to 94 cents from 62 cents last year, a 52 percent gain.

These results are restated to include United Scientific Corp., acquired by Data-Design in December 1979, which is accounted for on a pooling-of-interests basis. Since the acquisition, Data-Design has made certain inventory adjustments in order to value the assets of United Scientific more conservatively.

Local drinkers attracted to foreign beers

Move over Bud, Miller and Coors! Make room on the shelves for the foreigners

Imported beers have landed in America and they're becoming a big hit with suds drinkers.

West End liquor merchants are unable to agree on why the demand for imported beers has been on a rapid rise in the last few years but the popularity is continuing to in-

"In the six years I've owned the store they've (imported beers) just gone bananas," said Jon Mansfield, owner of a Rancho Cucamonga liquor store. "We've increased our stock and we've eliminated a lot of American beers" that weren't selling well.

"Our selection is growing," said Bob Sale, "everytime we get a new one, which is about every week or so, we carry it." Sale is manager of an Upland liquor store.

Buyers of the imported brew are generally young adults in their 20s or early 30s, retailers report. A couple of merchants say that even the cost doesn't seem to deter the buyers and sales seem to bridge all income brackets.

Imports are generally twice as expensive as domestic brands. A sixpack of a popular American beer will cost less than $2 for 12-ounce cans or bottles whereas a six-pack of the same sized imported beer will often sell for $4 or $5. One of the most expensive beers is Grolsch, from the Netherlands, which sells for about $1.40 for a 16-ounce bottle.

Imports from all over the world can be found in many area stores. Imports from the Netherlands, West Germany, England, Australia, Canada, Japan, Mexico, the People's Republic of China, New

Henry Chavin, manager of a Montclair liquor store and in the business for 15 years, said there are several possible reasons for the increasing popularity of imported

"Some people attribute that (increased popularity) to, number one, affluency among younger people, number two, some of them claim that imported beers have more flavor and more style to the beer and maybe it has snob appeal," Chavin said.

Chavin went on to say that in West Germany there are hundreds of "localized" breweries that "have an identity" in contrast with the United States, where "we have nothing to identify with." The domestic breweries have been "bastar-dized...nationalized," he said, taking away the individuality.

Statistics provided by the Joseph Huber Brewing Company in Wisconsin support his statement. According to the statistics, in 1954 there were 374 United States breweries. Today, that number has dwindled to 38, with large brewers dominating the market.

Sale, who has been in liquor retailing for 10 years, gave some different reasons people are buying imported beers. Besides sampling the variety of beers, some adults collect the unique bottles and labels.

"We have one guy who thought he had quite a collection (of bottles) with 300, but then he found out there are something like 3,000 to 4,000 brands (worldwide)," Sale said.

Another store owner, Vicki Weiland, feels more advertising of imported brands has helped push sales of brew from overseas and over the border. Because of the demand, Weiland has increased the refrigerated import beer area in her Upland store from one to three sec-

Hunter also has ideas about what sparked the switch to imports.

'About 10 years ago everybody was drinking the popular-priced beers," Hunter said. Then, "what really paved the way was the premium beers...and superpremium beers" such as Michelob, Andeker and Ehrlanger, Hunter

The changing tastes in beers then led right into the imports.

Whatever the reason for imported beer's popularity, the sales figures are impressive.

California's imported beer sales jumped 38 percent in 1979 over the previous year, Hunter said. Pomona Valley Distributing, which handles about 40 different imports, has seen a larger jump than the state average with a 46 percent boost over the same period. Most of the area liquor stores surveyed show that only about 10 to 15 percent of their total beer business is done in imports.

The variety of foreign beers is staggering. Even with each brand there are taste differences between light and dark beers. Some also have bock and Oktoberfest beers which are generally made at different times of the year.

Besides the difference in color of a light lager and a dark lager, the dark is usually sweeter and more aromatic than light. The dark color in "true" dark lagers is derived from the roasting of barley.

(A lager is a beer with an alcoholic content ranging from 3.2 to 4 percent, according to Michael A. Weiner in his book, "The Taster's Guide to Beer." Any malt beverage sold in California with higher than a 4 percent alcohol content must be labeled a malt liquor, stout, porter

Ales use more hops than lagers and they have an alcoholic content ranging from 4 to 5 percent. They are the most popular type of beer in Britain, where the staple drink in pubs is draught bitter, a brew from pale-ale malts.

One of the strongest ales available in local liquor stores is Watney's Stingo, retailers say.

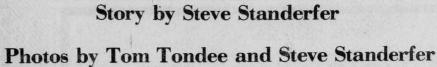

Porters and stouts are different varieties of ales.

Beers with the strongest alcoholic content are malt liquors which range from 4 to 8 percent. Retailers say one of the strongest malt liquors is Carlsberg Elephant Malt Liquor (which has an alcoholic content of more than 8 percent.)

United States brewers, noticing the influx of imports, are coming out with more premium beers. Miller Brewing Company has rights to produce Lowenbrau, which was originally brewed in Germany, Carling Brewing Company produces a domestic version of Danish Tuborg lager and Anheuser-Busch is reportedly negotiating with a European brewer to either act as distributor or domestic brewer of a foreign beer.

Another phenomenon is what Sale describes as "domestic imports." Besides those American beers with European roots, there are also some high-premium domestic beers being produced in limited quantities. Sale said one of the most popular and newest to this area of this type is an Oregon product, Henry Weinhard's Private Reserve.

A frothing mug of Heineken — the biggest selling imported beer in America, above. Bob Sale, manager of an Upland liquor store, displays some popular beers from Japan, Mexico and employment. Tell your child that you plan to be gone and that a sitter will be in charge. Tell the sitter where you will be, how you can be reached and what time you are expected home. If delayed, it is wise to phone.

West Germany, right. Sale said his store has about 55 imported brands. The popularity of imported beers has increased to where about 10 percent of all beer sales are in imports, Sale said.

Show the sitter around your home, introducing her to the child and giving her any special instructions. Put instructions about medication in writing. If the child is to be fed in your absence, it is safer to prepare the food yourself in advance. If the sitter is to prepare the food, tell her exactly what to serve.

Warn the sitter in advance of any hazardous conditions in the house that should be avoided by the child and herself.

For emergencies, give the sitter the phone numbers of the child's physician, police, fire department and a nearby friend or relative as well as where you can be reached. To assure the safety of the sitter at night, escort her home and wait until she is safely inside her home.

Perk up breakfast appetites with 'self-serve' Date Nut Loaf in most American households, it seems that the hearty, nutritious breakfast is a thing of the past.

Though we may still believe it's a good idea to start the day with a nourishing meal - it just doesn't seem to be convenient. Schedules vary so greatly, family members seldom eat at the same time; the result is everyone prepares his or her own quick bite or they end up skipping breakfast altogether.

Date - Nut Breakfast Loaf is a solution to the breakfast problem. This loaf is a convenient, nourishing "self serve" breakfast idea that can be ready for early risers or will stay fresh for late sleepers. It's easy to prepare and can be fixed the night before and refrigerated until

To prepare the loaf, simply cut a frozen old-fashioned date-nut cake lengthwise into three layers. Spread two layers with a blend of cream cheese, crushed pineapple, finely chopped ham and ground ginger, then reassemble like a torte using the third layer as a top. Chill until needed or refrigerate overnight and when the morning rush begins, just slice and serve.

Date-Nut Breakfast Loaf is a delicious way to start 1000 the day and if there's any left, it makes a marvelous afternoon snack.

Date Nut Breakfast Loaf

1 package (123/4 ounces) old - fashioned date nut cake,

1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) crushed pineapple, well drained

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger 1/3 cup finely chopped ham

With a sharp knife cut frozen date nut cake into three equal lengthwise slices. In a bowl, mash crushed pineapple with cheese until well blended. Stir in ginger and ham. Place bottom slice on a serving platter and spread with half of the cheese mixture. Top with second slice, remaining filling and top slice. Chill until ready to serve. Cut loaf into thick slices using a serrated knife with a sawing motion. Makes 1 loaf, enough to serve 6.

Booth's army still fighting

By RITA GILLMON Copley News Service

The Salvation Army, now celebrating its 100th year of operations in the United States, was founded by evangelist William Booth in 1865 in London in response to the misery of the London

Booth was the first general of the Army, which retains its military organization.

The Army's teachings are largely in harmony with traditional evangelistic beliefs, but reject all sacraments and stress the moral character of Christianity.

Though its headquarters are in London, the Army is especially strong in the United States.

The first official contingent of the Army arrived in New York City on March 10, 1880, when Commissioner George Scott Railton and seven young women brought the red, yellow and blue flag of the Army to America. Their first act was to hold an open-air meeting at Castle Garden, now known as The Battery.

In the first year, Railton went as far as St. Louis, Mo., where he went out on the ice of the Mississippi River and sang, "Sinners, Whither Would You Wander?'' to a congregation of speeding ice skaters.

The first issue of the American "War Cry," weekly magazine, was published in St. Louis in January 1881.

In the early days Salvationists were often arrested for disturbing the peace because their outdoor meetings and marches are accompanied by the lively playing of brass instruments and drums, but the Army persisted and soon established the social work programs for which it is widely known today.

Evangeline Booth, daughter of the Army's founder, visited the Klondike gold rush area of Alaska in 1898 and was made the National Commander of America at the age of 39, a post she held for 30 years.

By 1907, the Army had become so well respected in this country that on the conclusion of a visit by William Booth, an official farewell for the general was held on the steps of New York's City Hall.

A police inspector and 50 policemen escorted the general through a crowd of 2.500 while five brass bands played. Twenty-seven years earlier, Railton had been refused permission to hold outdoor meetings there.

Salvation Army doughnuts became familiar to the public during World War I, and Evangeline Booth was given the Distinguished Service Medal in appreciation of Salvationist services overseas during that war.

Chimpanzees are emotional

Copley News Service Did you know the playful chimpanzee is also a bloodthirsty fighter? Chimps aren't always the playful animal portrayed on the screen. They're very emotional. They express joy, anger, fear, surprise, disgust, interest, sadness and show affection by hugging and kissing.

They learn fast. They're no chumps, but when it comes to remembering, their knowledge is fleeting.

Females outlive males. Chimps get ailments much the same as people.

When excited, chimp macho-man beats on a tree trunk. In the wild, neighboring communities of chimps fight and attack each other with a death rate equivalent to 16 times the murder rate of the United States.
